MAJESTIC REVERENCE FOR HARDING SHOWN AT CAPITAL SERVICES

SOLEMN FUNERAL RITES FOR LATE PRESIDENT COVER 8-HOUR PERIOD

Washington, Aug. 8.—The solemn state funeral rites for the late President Harding today will cover a period of eight hours. The events follow:

10:00 A. M.—Funeral procession leaves White House, moving east on Pennsylvania Avenue to the capitol.
11:00 A. M.—Funeral services, conducted by Rev. J. Freeman Anderson, acting pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, the late president's place of worship.
11:30 A. M.—Late president's body lies in state beneath capitol's dome.
5:00 P. M.—Doors of capitol closed.
5:15 P. M.—Procession starts for Union Station.
6:00 P. M.—Harding funeral train leaves for Marion, Ohio.

Washington, Aug. 8.—America spoke her grief today at the passing of a well-beloved son, the twenty-ninth president of the United States—spoke it in it in pageantry of sorrow, spoke it in an outpouring of intense emotion, spoke it in tones of majestic reverence such as the nation has seldom heard.

All that a great and powerful people can do to show their veneration and respect for a departed leader was done here today in the capital for Warren G. Harding. All the homage and sorrow that is in the nation's heart was laid today at his silent feet. And in the performance today was written a chapter across the pages of the republic's history that shall be forever green in the memories of men.

Hardly had a torpid sun swung quarter way across the smoky sky, when the great black gates of the White House swung wide and all that remains of Warren G. Harding came forth from his last night under its broad roof into the hands of the people and thence through endless lanes of a bowed and reverential citizenry to where the dome of the capitol showed mistily in the foggy heavens.

And there, under the great dome which has covered but few of the nation's heroes, reverential hands laid his body, wrapped only in the glorious mantle of the flag, on its catafalque, that the rich and poor, the mighty and the small, might pass by his bier and mourn him to his grave. Historic Pennsylvania avenue which has echoed to the sadness of Lincoln's cortege, the triumphant tramp of Grant's men, home from the wars; the grief that attended the passing of Garfield and McKinley; reverberated today to the marching of those who did honor to Harding—home at last, after a three thousand mile journey that Caesar might well have envied.

It was down this same broad avenue, but twenty-nine months ago that Warren G. Harding rode to the greatest honor that can come to man, the presidency of the greatest republic on earth. Then he was filled with the flush of life, vigorous, alert, keen and anxious to get at the great tasks ahead of him. Beside him was a man who was relinquishing the same honored position shrunken, white-faced, lame, a victim of the terrible toll that today that same white faced man, Woodrow Wilson, rode behind Warren G. Harding to the shrine of the nation's departed great.

Then the avenue had been gay, boisterous, its building alive with flags and bunting and the acclaim that came to Warren G. Harding that day brought a rich red flush to his tanned face and a twisted smile to

ORDERS INQUEST INTO WATT'S DEATH

County Coroner R. L. Haines, of Paintersville, has ordered an inquest in the death of Kelly Watt farmer of near Jamestown, who was killed in an automobile accident on the Jeffersonville pike Monday evening. The inquest will be held next Monday morning.

Watt was killed when the machine in which he was riding with Mrs. Watt and Mr. and Mrs. Ora Goodin and the latter's two children, collided head-on with an automobile going in the opposite direction occupied by four boys and driven by Leo Snodgrass.

It is claimed that both machines were being driven without lights, but that the lights on the machine occupied by Mr. Watt, had just gone out that Mr. Goodin was warning other motor drivers by using a hand flashlight.

Mrs. Watt received a fractured arm in the accident and was brought to the McClellan Hospital here Tuesday for an X-ray picture. The body of Mr. Watt was shipped from Jamestown Wednesday morning to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Watt of Pike County, south of Waverly.

KOREAN TELLS OF WRONGS ENDURED BY HIS COUNTRY

With Korean intensity and a perfect mastery of the best English, Dr. Henry Chung, the Korean Commissioner to the United States compelled the interest of the Xenia Bible Conference Tuesday evening.

The wrongs that Korea has endured at the hands of the Japanese were portrayed with sympathetic eloquence until few if any of the auditors were unmoved. The tyranny of Japan has been economic in subsidizing the very life of the Korean commerce in her own interests. It has been evidenced in the school system which has felt the supremacy of Japan and the throttling of the spirit of Korea. It has demonstrated itself in the very supervision of religion whereby missionary efforts have been curtailed or misdirected.

Judged by the results for the expenditure of funds Korea has five hundred times more to show for the Christian mission propaganda than China and much more than many other countries. Korean Christians allow no spiritual slackers and send their own workers farther on to Siberia and Manchuria.

No finer philosophy has ever been devised than that of the Apostle Paul that God hath made of one blood all nations of men and therefore America is the brother of Korea.

Wednesday night Dr. Chung will speak again at eight o'clock taking the subject "The Policy of the United States in the Orient." All students of international affairs and everybody who wants first hand information on questions looming large on the international horizon should hear the Korean Commissioner Wednesday night.

The seven o'clock hour Wednesday night will be filled by Rev. Frank I. Freet who will talk on "Compelling Evangelism."

Tuesday afternoon Dr. S. Kelley Giffin spoke on the book of James telling of six sins which are dealt with in a portion of the book. These are the sin of being discouraged, the sin of laying on sin on God, the sin of becoming angry in religious discussion, the sin of hearing and not doing, the sin of showing respect of persons and the sin of a dead orthodoxy.

Dr. George L. Robinson of Chicago, will begin his Bible studies Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. Dr. J. M. Blackwood continues his Mission studies daily at two o'clock taking the text book "The Debt Eternal." At two o'clock daily Mrs. J. P. White has the story hour open to children.

REVOLUTION NOW THREATENS GREECE

THEY DID LIKE WARREN HARDING DOWN AT MARION—LISTEN TO COL. CHRISTIAN

Marion, O., Aug. 8.—Come over and rest a minute or two on the front porch of the Christian home, a couple of squares out of Church street. The colonel himself is receiving—Colonel George B. Christian Sr.

Ask anyone here in Marion who knows more about Warren G. Harding than anybody, and he'll swear: "Colonel Christian."

The fact is that the first time he saw "Warren," the late chief executive, was a gangling farmer lad of about 16 years. The colonel's son, George Christian Jr., was the private secretary to the president. The two families lived within a stone's throw of each other.

Let the colonel himself tell you something about this man who has just died and who is sincerely mourned by the nations of the world:

"We got to talking one time about people being honest," the colonel starts. "Warren was always pretty much a firm believer in everybody."

"I wasn't so sure about that end of human nature. You know you can't tell sometimes."

"Well, we fought back and forth for quite a spell. Finally Warren says 'Colonel I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll get ten plain envelopes, put a dollar bill in each and address them to the Marion Star. Then we'll drop these all around the place and see what happens.'"

"That's what we did. Well, sir, how many do you suppose came back. The colonel paused to give you all the time you wanted to deliberate. You guess wrong."

"Well, sir, seven of 'em came back and Warren was right pleased. We figured out that the others perhaps had fallen into the hands of youngsters who didn't know any better."

The talk turns to this and that. "Member the time when there was a couple of young fellows went out to Larue, quite a piece out in the country. Both of 'em was chewing tobacco. Fellows out there thought they'd had a joke and put the coal scuttle about sixteen feet away. Didn't bother 'em a particle. Hit that man who succeeded him in the highest office of the land.

Unheeding the advice of physicians who feared the trip would be too much for him, Mr. Wilson braved the heavy ordeal, because, as he said himself in a letter to President Coolidge, "I shall esteem it an honor to take part in the funeral procession." But he participated only to the extent of riding down Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House to the capitol behind the heavily draped, slow moving artillery caisson that carried the body of the late president.

His own precarious health, shattered too, in the service of country, prevented him from attending the impressive brief services under the historic dome of the capitol.

DONAHEY IN WASHINGTON.

Columbus, Aug. 8.—Governor Donahey is in Washington attending the funeral of President Harding. Before leaving for the national capital the governor issued a proclamation designating Friday, Aug. 10, as a day of general mourning in the state of Ohio.

Rules for the proper display of mourning with the American flag as reported by Ohmer Tate, chairman of the Americanization Committee of Poody Post of the American Legion, reiterate that crepe should be pinned in the blue field, preferably in a bow when the flag is displayed on the wall.

If the flag is displayed from a pole fastened to a window sill, the mourning should take the form of black streamers fastened at the extreme end of the staff.

A new ruling as to the proper display of the flag on a wall, as announced by Mr. Tate, requires that the blue field appear always in the upper left hand corner regardless of whether the stripes are horizontal or vertical.

City Prepares for Sad Home-coming of Her Distinguished Son—Khaki-Clad Men On Duty to Handle Expected Immense Crowds

Marion, O., Aug. 8.—While Washington today paid homage to a dead president, Marion assumed a military aspect in preparation for a home-coming tomorrow—the saddest home-coming a city may know, when her distinguished dead son, Warren G. Harding, mourned by the nation, honored by the world—but beloved by his fellow townsmen and neighbors here, will come to rest.

Khaki-clad men are on duty at all the main street intersections and direct the ever-increasing traffic on all roads leading into the shrouded city. The fairgrounds is a beehive of activity, being placed in readiness for the arrival of 1,100 Ohio National guardsmen today, and an additional 2,000 Thursday, to handle the crowd of 100,000 visitors expected.

SEEK NEW BASIS FOR REPARATIONS

London, Aug. 8.—Premier Stanley Baldwin consulted his cabinet today in an effort to establish a new basis of reparations negotiations with Belgium. It was reported from Brussels that Premier Theunis, of Belgium, is anxious to intervene to settle the differences between France and Great Britain.

With Italy lined up with England, the British may find means of bringing pressure upon France through Belgium. The latter have begun to feel the economic strain arising from uncertainty over reparations and are anxious to have the question definitively settled as soon as possible.

After an informal consultation between the premier and his ministerial colleagues a full meeting of the cabinet was held. Initial steps are under way to draft a reply to the latest French memorandum on reparations.

MRS. HARDING HOLDS VIGIL WITH DEAD

Washington, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Warren Harding, widow of the twenty-ninth president, held a last vigil with her dead this morning, before turning his mortal remains over to his countrymen for the impressive public funeral.

Arising at 7:45 o'clock Mrs. Harding stole quietly to the East room, where the body of her distinguished husband lay in state. Sitting by his bier, with tear dimmed eyes, she bowed beneath the burden of her grief. With a last long look at the bier, she turned away to let White House attendants prepare for the removal of the body to the capitol for the public services.

Approximately 1,100 Ohio national guardsmen detained at Marion today to be reinforced Thursday by an additional 2,000 troops to handle the expected crowd of 100,000 visitors. The troops are in command of Major General Benson W. Hough of Columbus.

The tomb will be guarded for six months by an officer and 25 enlisted men, Colonel Lahn, in charge of the arrangements, announced. The men will be detailed by Major General McRae, in command of the Fifth Army corps area, with headquarters at Columbus.

When Ted Crandall and Albert Currier heard Pruneau was in the neighborhood, they got out their automobile and started in the direction the hunted man was walking.

They offered a ride as far as Montpelier and Pruneau accepted. When a policeman was sighted, the car was brought to a halt and Pruneau was arrested. He still carried a revolver.

A FALSE PROPHET OF DIRE DISASTER.

Senator-elect Magnus Johnson is quoted as saying he "has no use for books."

This explains the recent revolutionary and altogether piratical interview he gave to the Associated Press. He predicts revolution—political, industrial and even a "resort to arms" if conditions confronting the laboring man and the farmer are not changed.

The senator adds: "Many think the same thing that happened in Russia cannot happen in this country; but don't fool yourself. The czar had a big army, but he could not stop a revolution. We haven't hardly any army at all, so what could our government do if there was a nation-wide revolution? It couldn't do a thing."

Obviously the new senator from Minnesota is helping the revolutionary sentiment by this very interview and statement. However, by his own admission, the senator knows nothing about books, and presumably nothing about history except the Russian revolution.

There have been predictions of revolution in the United States amounting to a resort to arms many times in the last fifty years. True, there have been uprisings and loss of life in clashes between different groups.

The aim of government for half a century or more has been to compel obedience to law and a maintenance of peace within our national borders. On the whole, this object has been attained with remarkable success, considering the great variety of natures, dispositions, ideas and habits among the 110,000,000 people. The melting-pot has boiled over many times, but is still in commission.

Many times in the nation's history there has arisen the spirit of disorder and discontent due to differences of opinion and group clashes. Once it amounted to a great civil war, when the nation's life was threatened. There have been political revolutions, as, for instance when the Republican party stormed the citadel of slavery, established free labor and saved the republic. There have been industrial revolutions, as, for instance, when machinery revolutionized production and made one man do the work of five, and in less time; or when electricity revolutionized power and harnessed the waterfall, saving coal and human energy.

Has the Honorable Magnus Johnson ever read or thought of these great industrial revolutions?

Within the lifetime of this prophet of disaster, in his own state (Minnesota), in the last fifteen years the manufacturing establishments have nearly doubled, the value of manufactured products trebled, the wages and salaries of employees in these industries almost doubled. In 1919 this last item (salaries and wages) was more than $250,000,000! Was not this an industrial revolution?

Does the Honorable Magnus Johnson know that in his own state the value of all farm products increased from $414,000,000 in 1890 to $3,787,000,000 in 1920?

Was not this an industrial revolution, senator? Is there anything in this industrial revolution to justify a "resort to arms"? Nothing but the vagaries in the imagination and threatening talk of the new senator from Minnesota.

MARION CEMETERY FITTING SHRINE FOR LAMENTED PRESIDENT.

The spot in Marion cemetery where all that is mortal of Warren G. Harding will be consigned to final rest, is one of the most beautiful in the vicinity of the quiet town to which he oftentimes said he hoped to return as an "ordinary citizen."

Situated at almost the exact center of the shady expanse of the old burial ground, the Harding family plot, where a president of the United States will resume his place among the kindly folk he knew and loved as neighbors, lies cupped in a tiny valley.

Two giant elms cast deep shadows over slabs of granite which mark the resting place of the president's mother and of his sister, Mary Clarissa, and only a few steps away a gleaming gravel roadway winds through a perfect archway of foliage fashioned by the inter-locking branches of virgin elms.

To the rear where the tiny depression levels itself out, stretches a quiet vista of gently rolling grass land, dotted here and there by the gray blot of a tombstone, all deepened into sombre tints by the shade of forest trees—a fitting background for the shrine of a dead president.

NEARLY A MILLION DOLLARS OF FEDERAL FUNDS TO BE SPENT ON OHIO HIGHWAYS.

Nearly one million dollars of federal funds will be spent on highway improvement in Ohio as a result of the approval by the federal highway department of the state's present federal-aid road-building program. Sixteen projects are involved. The total cost of the improvements will be $2,907,700, of which the federal government will pay $945,494.52. Approval of the Ohio projects came on the last day of the administration of Highway Director Leon C. Herrick.

By the close of the present summer approximately 179,000 miles of roads will have been designated as a part of the federal-aid road system by the highway authorities at Washington. The systems of 33 states, including Ohio, already have been approved, with a total of 105,406 miles. Of the 1,015 cities of 5,000 population or more in the states whose systems have been officially accepted, 959 lie directly on the road system and all, according to present plans, will soon be connected by improved state or county roads. When this system is completed it will be possible for one who lives in a city of 5,000 or more to travel to any other city of 5,000 or more on an improved road.

off, of course. Most shop-keepers can be persuaded to sell such handwork on a percentage basis.

And, before I close this little chat, I want to say one thing more; you will succeed in making money if you are determined enough. Determination will bring almost any desired result. The average woman is too easily discouraged. But determination creates opportunities for us and is the open door to success. If you want a thing hard enough—well, you'll get it!

Again and again the question comes to me from readers: "How can I make money at home?" We all know the need of making money—or most of us do, anyway. The majority of women home-makers long to do something in the way of earning "pin money." There are so many, many ways they could use such money!

And I believe that there is some way for each and every one of us to make money at home. I have seen it done over and over again. Some housekeepers find that they can sell the things they cook. Another housewife keeps hens and sells the eggs. Still another raises Angora cats or canary birds or some other kind of pet. Taking boarders is another method.

But, to my mind, fancywork represents about the best way of making money. For this reason, I am continually publishing handwork suggestions in this column. I am constantly searching through city fancywork stores for "the latest wrinkle" in fancywork articles.

But when anybody says to me: "What would you do to earn pin money, if you didn't write for a living?" I always answer: "I think I make bead chains. Of course I might not be able to make a living just by that alone, but I am sure that the chains I could make would sell. I could earn something at it."

For, this is the day of the bead chain. Do you know many women who don't wear bead chains? On the contrary, almost every woman owns several different chains. The average woman loves chains. And, furthermore, it is the fashion now to wear them.

Unusual chains should sell today. I believe that it would pay the woman who wishes to earn, to invest one or two dollars in loose beads and then originate an artistic chain out of them; such a chain could be sold in a woman's exchange or in any small drygoods store—with a percentage

Boils

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

AROUND THE WORLD.

I met a dusty traveler along the road one day. And plainly he was homeward bound from half the world away. And he had been to foreign ports on seas I'd never seen, And heard the talk of men afar where I had never been.

"Oh, tired and dusty traveler," said I, "pray tell to me What did you find in London town, so far across the sea? What did you learn in Portugal, what did you see in Spain, And do they sing and dance and laugh across the bounding main?"

"And do they have their little cares who live in ancient Rome? And do the children romp and play the way they do at home? Oh, tell me, dusty traveler, what have you found afar?"

I'd like to know what pleases them and what their sorrows are."

"Oh, yes," he said, "they dance and sing wherever you may go. And everywhere they think and talk just like the folks you know. And whether skins be brown or white, the hearts of men are fair; And though you tramp the world around, there's friendship every-where."

"They weep when sorrow comes to them, they smile when skies are blue, In times of care good neighbors come to learn what they can do; Though strange their speech and their ways, one common bond we know— A kindly deed is understood no matter where you go."

Today's Talk

A SWISH OF DREAMS

We are led and inspired, even more than we ever attempt to believe, by that elusive something way back behind our curtain of dreams.

Every once in a while, there is a flash of it that touches our sight or our senses and immediately we are thrilled. Often this visitation comes wrapped in a cluster that buds right out of the darkness, like the stars from a sky rocket, only to melt into that same nest of blackness again and disappear.

But the impression remains. Sometimes I have a feeling that we must travel into a very beautiful country to come back in such happiness, as when we awake from a dream that makes a smile of our entire consciousness.

I had such a brief dream recently. It seems so real. And yet when I awakened, I could recall no incident, no logical sequence of events—for it was just a dream that streamed out as the sun streamed in! I knew, however, that someone had talked to me. A pleasant, happy face was all that I could remember. The matter of sex didn't enter at all for I couldn't remember whether it was the face of a man or woman. It made me want to get right up, though, and go into the work of the day with heart and courage. What would we do with these tired feet and wearied brains if at times we were not awakened by the swish of some beautiful dream passing before the front doors of our hearts? Perhaps, after all, our dreams are the diamond of our desires crystallizing for a moment—then flashing far ahead, beckoning us to follow. I wonder.

MAJESTIC HONOR PAID BY PEOPLE AT U. S. CAPITAL

While minute guns of the army and navy boomed solemnly, the body of the late chief executive was taken from the white house to the capitol under the most representative escort that has ever paid tribute to a world leader.

General Pershing, as commander of the military escort, led the procession, which left the white house shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. Six generals of the army and six admirals of the navy acted as immediate guard of honor to the caisson bearing the remains of the late president. Seven senators, including President Pro Tem Cummings, and seven representatives, including Speaker Gillett of the house, joined members of the Harding cabinet in acting as honorary pallbearers. They moved with the caisson. Immediately in advance of the caisson was Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, marshal of the civic procession, the clergymen in charge of the services and the physicians who attended President Harding at his last illness.

Religious services began immediately after the body of the dead president had been placed in the rotunda beneath the central dome of the capitol. They were under the direction of the Rev. Freeman Anderson, acting pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, of which Mr. Harding was a member. The services were extremely simple. Draped flags and palms furnished dignified surroundings.

Following the religious services the doors were thrown open to the public to view the body as it lies in state. At 6 o'clock this evening a military escort will take the body to the railroad station, while a farewell salute of 21 guns is fired at Fort Myer. The Harding special is expected to leave for Marion at 7 o'clock.

The following were included in the official section of the procession to the capitol: Circuit court of appeals, court of claims, court of customs appeals, court of appeals and supreme court of the District of Columbia, under secretaries and assistant secretaries of federal departments, assistant postmasters general and assistant attorneys general, United States marshal and United States attorney. The chairmen of the following groups also appeared: Federal reserve board, interstate commerce commission, civil service commission, various mixed commissions dealing with international problems and other agencies of the federal government.

The final and most representative group of the procession was that composed of persons from various patriotic and civic organizations. This section was headed by men who have won the congressional medal of honor for heroic deeds in the service of their country by land and sea. They were followed by army officers, headed by Assistant Secretary of War Davis and naval officers led by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Next marched officers of the coast guard and public health service, headed by the assistant secretary of the treasury and officers of the coast and geodetic survey under the command of the assistant secretary of commerce.

weight championship of the south, makes his Ohio debut at Springfield Wednesday in a 12 round bout with Walter Archer of Akron.

The fight is being staged by Ray Bronson, matchmaker for the Springfield Business Men's Association. Lawson came out of the south on the trail of Tiger Flowers only to find that he would have to make a local reputation before being considered by Bronson.

The Pittsburgher is a big fellow, weighing 185 pounds. He cleaned up the south pretty well before leaving. He boasts of 19 knockouts in a row including the bout that brought him the southern title. He did not earn the title of "Fighting Bob" by knocking over setups because down in the part of the country a negro has to show something extraordinary.

Lawson fought Tiger Flowers at Nashville and although he lost, Lawson dropped Flowers six times during the fight. He is "probably the hardest punching negro in the game today," Lawson has been promised a fight with Flowers in Springfield if he shows well with Archer and Lawson's followers predict he will stop Archer in three or four rounds.

There will be a 10 round semi-windup between Billy Thorpe of McCook field and Young Fisher of Springfield. These lads will fight at 135 pounds.

There will be a six round bout and a four round curtain raiser. Popular prices will prevail. The show will start at 8:15 o'clock at Memorial Hall.

RESERVES TO PLAY BOWERSVILLE NINE ON LOCAL DIAMOND

Bert Bowermeister, the Bowersville baseball magnate, will bring his fast-moving outfit of horsehide toasters into the corporate limits Sunday to engage in hostilities with the Xenia Reserves at Reserve Park.

The sporting dope gives promise that the coming set to will be one of the best of the season. When Bowermeister reorganized his pastimers this season he uncovered a wonder boy in Wells, the crack mound artist, who has been getting away in grand shape for the Bowersville bunch.

Wells has pitched practically all of the games this season, and his hits garnered off his delivery have been few and far between. Murrell is holding up Wells in good style, and the rest of the Bowersville performers are said to be snappy performers either in the field or with the ash.

A NEW NOVEL

Worth the Price of a Whole Years Subscription

WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE

Which would you choose? But wait—

Poverty, with a clear conscience, a free mind, a fairly happy heart, a constant hope of better times;

Or riches, with a sickening fear of you know not what, a gnawing suspicion, a growing disgust.

Read the new novel.

"A WIFE'S STORY"

BY JANE PHELPS

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING

The proof of the pudding, they say, is in the eating. The test of a life is in the living—but many a married life could be made happier and safer if some of the tests were applied before matrimony, instead of waiting for the acid test of experience to enlighten Youth.

Ruby Atkins met Paul Norwood and married him. About all she knew of him was that he had crinkly hair and fine shoulders and—was her husband. But what she and her daughters learned of him later is told in

"A WIFE'S STORY"

Jane Phelps, the popular author of newspaper serials, tells the story of a family that knew the pain of poverty and the evils of prosperity, and finally made their choice.

This remarkable story will start in The Gazette and The Republican early in August. If you are not now a subscriber get your name on the list or you will miss one of the most interesting stories yet published by this remarkable author.

TO START ERECTION OF NEW BUILDING AT O. S. & S. O. HOME

Erection of the new school building and combined laundry and dry cleaning establishment at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home here will start within 30 days, it is announced.

Plans for the two buildings were approved by the board of trustees at the last meeting after being presented by State Architect Robert Harsh. The building program was approved by the State Legislature some time ago and the funds appropriated. The school will cost about $150,000 and the laundry approximately $27,000.

The school house will be built on a site between the present north school building and the chapel, and will contain an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,200 and a swimming pool. It will be established as a first-grade high school and will relieve congested conditions in the other two schools, it is said. The first four-year high school course at the institution was started last year.

The old grade building has been condemned as unfit for use, and the high school and sewing and stenography classes are housed in a building erected adjoining the old school. The old building will be repaired and equipped for a vocational school, and the grades will be placed in the present high school.

The use of the new blue and gray uniforms make a dry cleaning plant necessary, it is said, and the establishment of such a plant in conjunction with the new laundry, will be an innovation. The new uniforms, now used only on dress occasions, will replace the present "washable" uniforms entirely soon. The laundry building and equipment is out of date, it is said.

NEW ICE CREAM AND DAIRY STORE OPENS

Wednesday will mark the opening of the new Xenia Ice Cream and Dairy Store, at 21 Green Street.

The new company will handle the products of the Moore and Ross Creamery, Columbus, selling the famous Moors and Ross ice cream wholesale and retail as well as other dairy products.

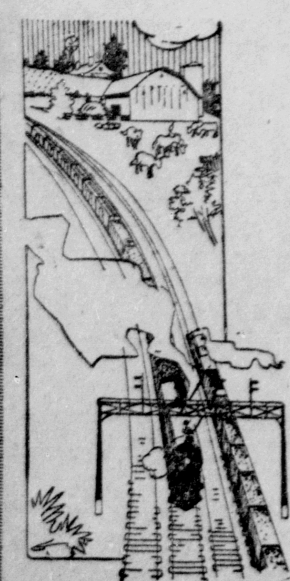

Milk cream, cheese, cottage cheese, butter and other dairy products will be handled by the new store, in wholesale or retail lots. The new store occupies the room in the Davidson building, formerly occupied for six years by the J. A. Beatty and Son furniture store.

The store room has been equipped with new furnishings to take care of the new business which is backed by Columbus interests. Invitations have been sent out to prospective patrons to inspect the new business house Wednesday.

EAST END NEWS

Mrs. Ada Joiner, wife of W. A. Joiner, former superintendent of the C. N. and I. Department, of Wilberforce, arrived in the city, Sunday morning, from Washington, D. C., for a brief visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rountree, of Columbus, Avenue. She will join her brothers, sister and mother, for a motor trip to Michigan, and a two weeks' stay at her summer home at Idlewild. Mrs. Joiner reports that the National Capital is exceptionally quiet at this time owing to the sad and unexpected death of the late President Harding.

A Farmer's View of the Railroads

"I THINK that the farming business and the railroad business are so utterly dependent upon each other, their interests are so identical that the man who drives a wedge between them is either crazy or he is a crook."

"What I want most of all is service and I don't see how any railroad can give it unless it has a good safe track and sufficient cars and the ample power to pull them, and that means ENOUGH MONEY to buy them."

"The question before us is not 'shall we save a few dollars on freight?' but 'shall the railroad business remain a business or shall it be a government agency owned in common but run by political employees?' If it is to remain a business it will have to run as a business and run to pay at least six per cent. for its owners. If it is to be communized, that is owned in common, I am just warning you that the communists will not wish to stop there. They will some day covet your farms."

"They can't have mine!"

F. L. Chapman, Editor, "Better Farming".

FORMER XENIAN OBSERVES BIRTH ANNIVERSARY IN WEST

A recent issue of the Stroud (Oklahoma) Democrat, contains an account of the celebration of the eighty-second birth anniversary of Dr. Harrison A. Galloway, of Stroud, a former Xenian.

About 30 guests were received on the lawn and there was entertainment provided from contests to fortune telling. Dr. Galloway received many gifts, including a rocking chair from his family and refreshments were served. Barrett Galloway read an article and there were talks by the different guests.

Dr. Galloway left Xenia 48 years ago and has been in the Indian Territory, now the state of Oklahoma, for 40 years. He was a member of Company D, 74th, Ohio Volunteer Infantry and retains membership in the G. A. R. He now is chief of staff, department commander and delegate to the national encampment at Milwaukee.

"I have seen this country grow from Texas Long Horns into now a state of over 2,000,000 people, when in 1833, when I came the population of the territories was less than 200,000," said Dr. Galloway in a letter to this paper.

SOLDIER ARRESTED

Emmet Montgomery, 35, soldier mechanic at Wilbur Wright Air Depot Fairfield, was arrested Saturday night by Sheriff Morris Sharp on a warrant issued in Marietta, Washington County, charging him with non support.

Marietta authorities sent an order from the War Department directed to Wright field officials to obtain Montgomery's release from duty to face the charge. The Sheriff of Washington County came here Sunday evening and returned Montgomery to Marietta for trial.

FARM NEWS OF GREENE COUNTY

WHEAT YIELD IN GREENE COUNTY OF HIGH QUALITY AND QUANTITY RESULTS SHOW

Greene County farmers are highly pleased with the wheat yield, this year, the crop being of both high quality and quantity. The yield passed the legal standard weight of 60 pounds, the yield in one field, registering 62 pounds to the bushel, an unusual amount. Good high weights have been recorded on all farms.

More favorable conditions were shown at filling time, than during the past few years, giving the entire county a good wheat yield, according to farmers.

The superiority which northern Ohio wheat showed last year over wheat grown in southern Ohio counties is not apparent this year, according to crops specialists at the Ohio State University. Inspecting samples of threshed grain submitted by farmers from all parts of the state for certification as seed.

Ohio wheat in general is of better weight and quality than in the years immediately preceding, they add. Few specimens of threshed grain are being turned down because of low weight to the bushel. The main causes for rejection are cockle and cheat in the grain.

Some samples, from both northern and southern counties, are running 61 pounds to the bushel this year, and few are falling below 59 pounds to the bushel. The legal weight of a bushel of wheat in Ohio is 60 pounds. Last year, a good deal of southern Ohio's crop ran around 56 pounds to the bushel.

This was thought to be due mainly to wheat scab. There was little scab in any part of the state this year, and an apparent discrepancy between the quality of northern and southern grown wheat.

Of the first 50 samples of threshed grain submitted for inspection of seed, two-thirds passed, it is announced. Samples from about 300 farms where wheat passed field inspection are to be thus examined, and it is estimated that about 200 farms will have certified wheat for sale at the end of the inspection process. Crops men at the college think this will be enough certified seed wheat to supply the state's needs.

THE MISFIT By Jane Phelps

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

Natalie Horton, a business girl, marries Horace Crandell, a wealthy, aristocratic bachelor who has promised never to leave his mother. The latter terms her daughter-in-law a "misfit." Unpleasantness occurs that eventually cause Natalie to leave Horace. Horace and his mother go to Europe but the son grieves for his wife and returns to her. Meanwhile Craig Harper falls in love with Natalie and tries to win her from Horace.

Eventually Natalie writes Mrs. Crandell asking her to return to take her life up again as mistress of her old home. Horace's mother takes time to think over the proposal. Natalie and Horace summer in Maine. Harper follows and again tests Natalie, only to be repulsed. Beverly Rainford visits them and is skeptical as to Mrs. Crandell's return.

HAPPY DAYS

Chapter LXVII

Every's departure brought Etta, Clyde and the baby, Natalie. The week of their visit was a busy and happy one for all. The little girl now toddling about and beginning to talk, was a great favorite with Horace. Natalie often declared she was jealous when she saw how she clung to him, and how pleased he was to gratify her baby whims. Horace was very gentle with her, yet she obeyed him far more quickly than either her father or mother. Often he would look at her with an expression in his eyes that Natalie interpreted as a longing for a child of his own.

Etta and Clyde enjoyed the unusual pleasures provided for them gratefully, both declaring they never had so good a time in all their lives. They did not realize that Horace, as well as Natalie made all their days special days, feeling they owed their present happiness to them, and wishing to repay them as far as they could.

Horace particularly felt that he could not do enough for the kindly pair who had sheltered Natalie when she was deserted and ill. So he filled every hour for them with some pleasure, some entertainment.

Then they, too, left and Horace and Natalie were once more alone. In a short three weeks they would return to the city and yet they had received no hint of Mrs. Crandell's plans. She had written several times but made no mention of her intentions.

How could her son and his wife suspect the weariness, the lassitude, that lay at the heart of her being? How could they know that she was too old for the new ties she had made to gain much of a hold upon her, that her only sensation was one of depression? How could they know her fears, mostly fears of her own ability to fit in their new manner of being?

How could they know that often she forgot to eat at appropriate hours because of thinking of them, trying to decide what was best to do for Horace's happiness? Natalie, Mrs. Crandell eliminated entirely, save as she affected Horace, her boy. So they waited, Natalie only a little less impatient for the mother's decision.

"She will surely write before we return to town," he said in one of their frequent talks of his mother. "I should think so, we asked her to you know" was Natalie's reply.

Those last days were days of unalloyed happiness to Natalie. She had a feeling that they were the last really happy days she would ever know. She pictured herself alone in her luxurious room in the old house, or sitting apart while Horace and his mother played chess in the library. She visioned herself as once more a nonentity in the home, sneered at by the servants because of her meek acceptance of the role assigned to her. She thought with a shudder of the conversation at table in which she had no part, was ignored. Yet not one word of all this did she say to Horace, hanging on to her happiness with a fierceness that at times dismayed her. She never had been so gay, so perfect a companion to Horace, never so fascinating, so lovely. Unconsciously he responded to her mood and as the days flew by he became more in love with her than ever, more anxious to be beside her.

They were all packed up, ready to return to the city in two days they would be gone. They were sitting at the breakfast table, lingering over their coffee, talking of their plans of the day, which was to be a full one. They would visit all the places grown dear to them, say "goodbye" as Natalie put it, to all their favorite haunts. Then the last day they would spend in their sailboat, taking the night train for home.

The maid brought in the morning mail. Horace sorted it, giving Natalie her letters, at which she scarcely glanced. She had seen the foreign postmark on an envelope at the bottom of the pile. Mrs. Crandell had written at last.

Natalie trembled as Horace picked it up. It was the end, unless— "A letter from mother. I expect she has decided what she will do about coming to us," Horace remarked, as in his usual deliberate fashion he opened it.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Crandell Writes Horace

JUST GOT OVER A COLD?

Look out for kidney trouble and backache. Colds overtax the kidneys and often leave them weak. For weak kidneys—well, read what an Xenia woman says:

Mrs. Hannah A. Reed, 520 W. Second St., says: "There were times when I stooped while washing that I got severe stabs of pain through my back, and I could hardly rise again, my back was so stiff. When I got up mornings I was lame and tired. My back throbbed in the morning just as if I had been pounded with a club. My kidneys were irregular in action and caused me annoyance. Colds settled on my kidneys and this started my trouble. About three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, which were highly recommended to me, relieved me of those pains in my back. My kidneys became normal and regular in every way."

To Recall the Operator

WHEN you lift the telephone receiver, a small electric light glows on the switchboard in front of the operator.

While the hook is up the light burns, press it down and the light goes out.

When you "jiggle" the receiver hook rapidly the tiny electric globe barely flickers or does not light at all.

But when you move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y, the signal lamp glows and goes out at regular intervals and thus attracts the operator's attention. Your line is only one of several she is handling and watchful as her eyes are, she cannot serve you properly unless you allow the signal lamp to function correctly.

The next time you wish to recall the operator, remember that she cannot see a glow from an unlighted lamp. Move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y.

Visit a central office and see the signal lamp and other apparatus in operation. Arrangements for a trip may be made at the business office.

MAJESTIC REVERENCE FOR HARDING SHOWN AT CAPITAL SERVICES

SOLEMN FUNERAL RITES FOR LATE PRESIDENT COVER 8-HOUR PERIOD

Washington, Aug. 8.—The solemn state funeral rites for the late President Harding today will cover a period of eight hours. The events follow:

10:00 A. M.—Funeral procession leaves White House, moving east on Pennsylvania Avenue to the capitol.
11:00 A. M.—Funeral services, conducted by Rev. J. Freeman Anderson, acting pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, the late president's place of worship.
11:30 A. M.—Late president's body lies in state beneath capitol's dome.
5:00 P. M.—Doors of capitol closed.
5:15 P. M.—Procession starts for Union Station.
6:00 P. M.—Harding funeral train leaves for Marion, Ohio.

Washington, Aug. 8.—America spoke her grief today at the passing of a well-beloved son, the twenty-ninth president of the United States—spoke it in a pageantry of sorrow, spoke it in an outpouring of intense emotion, spoke it in tones of majestic reverence such as the nation has seldom heard.

All that a great and powerful people can do to show their veneration and respect for a departed leader was done here today in the capital for Warren G. Harding. All the homage and sorrow that is in the nation's heart was laid today at his silent feet. And in the performance there was written a chapter across the pages of the republic's history that shall be forever green in the memories of men.

Hardly had a torpid sun swung quarter way across the smoky sky, when the great black gates of the White House swung wide and all that remains of Warren G. Harding came forth from his last night under its broad roof into the hands of the people and thence through endless lanes of a bowed and reverential citizenry to where the dome of the capitol showed mistily in the foggy heavens.

And there, under the great dome which has covered but few of the nation's heroes, reverential hands laid his body, wrapped only in the glorious mantle of the flag, on its catafalque, that the rich and poor, the mighty and the small, might pass by his bier and mourn him to his grave. Historic Pennsylvania Avenue which has echoed to the sadness of Lincoln's cortege, the triumphant tramp of Grant's men, home from the wars; the grief that attended the passing of Garfield and McKinley; reverberated today to the marching of those who did honor to Harding—home at last, after a three thousand mile journey that Caesar might well have envied.

It was down this same broad avenue, but twenty-nine months ago that Warren G. Harding rode to the greatest honor that can come to man, the presidency of the greatest republic on earth. Then he was filled with the flush of life, vigorous, alert, keen and anxious to get at the great tasks ahead of him. Beside him that bleak March day rode a man who was relinquishing the same honored position shrunken, white-faced, lame, a victim of the terrible toll that America exacts of her high servants. Today that same white-faced man, Woodrow Wilson, rode behind Warren G. Harding to the throne of the nation's departed great.

Then the avenue had been gay, boisterous, its building alive with flags and bunting and the acclamation that came to Warren G. Harding that day brought a rich red flush to his tanned face and a twisted smile to the face of the man who rode beside him.

Today the avenue was silent as the tomb, its buildings draped with black, and the brilliant colorings of the flags and bunting dimmed by the crepe that swung dead in the hot, lifeless air.

There was, however, the same acclaim. But where before it had been the acclaim for the hopeful living today it was the silent acclaim for the departed dead.

The same faces were to be seen on the avenue today that were there that cold March day, 29 months ago. There were men, grave silent, bare-headed and respectful. There were women, sombre of dress, and frankly fearful. There were children wide-eyed and fearful too, for the man who had allowed them to roll eggs on his lawn at Easter-tide.

The avenue today resounded to the mournful dirge of the dead. Twice now in the last quarter century, it has vibrated with the slow cadence of marching men, bound on a sad, stern duty of bidding a fitting farewell to a departed president.

The actual start of the calvarcade of sorrow came at 10:17 a. m. more than a quarter of an hour late. The delay was caused by the labors of the military pallbearers in strapping the flag draped casket to the caisson. With the crunch of wheels on the gravel roadway, the calvarcade swung slowly down through the executive grounds and into the historic avenue.

In the great procession which marked the final passing of Warren G. Harding from the White House to the capitol today and his passing too, from the stage of world affairs, were all manner of men. There were the great of the nation and the small.

There was the new president, Calvin Coolidge, slim, red-lipped, his face reflecting all ready the realization of what awful burdens have suddenly been set astride his narrow shoulders by an inscrutable fate. There were two past presidents of the republic, Taft and Wilson. The years have passed and but lightly touched the former since he last went up the avenue. They have weighed heavily on the lame, white-faced other one.

There was a saddened and utterly grief stricken woman, Mrs. Harding, strangely small in her garb of heavy black mourning, and yet pathetically brave in a manner that has challenged the admiration of the nation. She was the cynosure of tear-wet eyes by all who could see and hear and feel.

Behind her carriage came other relatives of the dead president—two sisters, Miss Abigail Harding, "Daisy" the president called her; and Mrs. E. E. Remsburg, of California, who made the journey across the continent on the funeral train, nieces and others.

President Harding's funeral train, freighted with sorrow of the nation, reached Washington at 10:22 o'clock last night.

Although the train was nine hours late, thousands jammed the station concourse, waiting for hours packed against the iron fence that shuts off the train platform, to be the first to give their silent tribute to the dead chief.

The train backed into the station so that the funeral car with its flag draped casket rolled in first, to stop where the little group headed by President Coolidge waited.

Mrs. Harding stepped off the car leaning on Secretary Christian's arm and with Dr. Sawyer on her other side. The band in the concourse began playing "Nearer My God to Thee."

As the solemn strains of the comforting hymn filled the station, the casket was tenderly lifted down through the special door cut in the side of the car. It was placed on a rolling platform.

A single wreath that had been waiting at the station was laid on and the great flag spread over the casket.

The military guard resumed its place about the casket. The uniformed men raised their burden and began moving slowly toward the double rank of non-commissioned officers who formed a corridor to the president's room.

KOREAN TELLS OF WRONGS ENDURED BY HIS COUNTRY

With Korean intensity and a perfect mastery of the best English, Dr. Henry Chung, the Korean Commissioner to the United States, compelled the interest of the Xenia Bible Conference Tuesday evening. The wrongs that Korea has endured at the hands of the Japanese were portrayed with sympathetic eloquence until few if any of the auditors were unmoved. The tyranny of Japan has been economic in subsidizing the very life of the Korean commerce in her own interests. It has been evidenced in the school system which has felt the supremacy of Japan and the throttling of the spirit of Korea. It has demonstrated itself in the very supervision of religion whereby missionary efforts have been curtailed or misdirected.

Judged by the results for the expenditure of funds Korea has five hundred times more to show for the Christian mission propaganda than China and much more than many other countries. Korean Christians allow no spiritual slacker and send their own workers farther on to Siberia and Manchuria.

No finer philosophy has ever been devised than that of the Apostle Paul that God hath made of one blood all nations of men and therefore America is the brother of Korea.

Wednesday night Dr. Chung will speak again at eight o'clock taking the subject "The Policy of the United States in the Orient." All students of international affairs and everybody who wants first hand information on questions looming large on the international horizon should hear the Korean Commissioner Wednesday night.

The seven o'clock hour Wednesday night will be filled by Rev. Frank L. Freest who will talk on "Compelling Evangelism."

Thursday afternoon Dr. S. Kelley Giffin spoke on the book of James telling of six sins which are dealt with in a portion of the book. These are the sin of being discouraged, the sin of laying our sins on God, the sin of becoming angry in religious discussion, the sin of hearing and not doing, the sin of showing respect of persons and the sin of a dead orthodoxy.

Dr. George L. Robinson of Chicago, will begin his Bible studies Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. Dr. J. M. Blackwood continues his Mission studies daily at two o'clock taking the text book "The Debt Eternal." At two o'clock daily Mrs. J. P. White has the story hour open to children.

REVOLUTION NOW THREATENS GREECE

Vienna, Aug. 8.—A despatch from Trieste today reported that revolution and civil war are threatened in Greece.

It is feared cavalry may march upon Salonika and seize the city. Demonstrations by workers against the high living costs are taking place at Athens, Salonika and elsewhere.

THEY DID LIKE WARREN HARDING DOWN AT MARION—LISTEN TO COL. CHRISTIAN

Marion, O., Aug. 8.—Come over and rest a minute or two on the front porch of the Christian home, a couple of squares out of Church street. The colonel himself is receiving—Colonel George B. Christian Sr.

Ask anyone here in Marion who knows more about Warren G. Harding than anybody, and he'll swear: "Colonel Christian."

The fact is that the first time he saw "Warren," the late chief executive, was a gangling farmer lad of about 16 years. The colonel's son, George Christian Jr., was the private secretary to the president. The two families lived within a stone's throw of each other.

Let the colonel himself tell you something about this man who has just died and who is sincerely mourned by the nations of the world:

"We got to talking one time about people being honest," the colonel starts. "Warren was always pretty much a firm believer in everybody."

"I wasn't so sure about that end of human nature. You know you can't tell sometimes."

"Well, we fought back and forth for quite a spell. Finally Warren says 'Colonel I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll get ten plain envelopes, put a dollar bill in each and address them to the Marion Star. Then we'll drop these all around the place and see what happens.'"

"That's what we did. Well, str. how many do you suppose came back. The colonel paused to give you all the time you wanted to deliberate. You guess wrong."

"Well, str. seven of 'em came back and Warren was right pleased. We figured out that the others perhaps had fallen into the hands of youngsters who didn't know any better."

The talk turns to this and that. "Member the time when there was a couple of young fellows went out to Larue, quite a piece out in the country. Both of 'em was chewing tobacco. Fellows out there thought they'd play a joke and put the coal scuttle about sixteen feet away. Didn't bother 'em a particle. Hit that coal scuttle everytime. In them days a man could shoot and hit the mark."

The colonel orders some lemonade and you wonder about the "two young fellows." He gets to it in his own time.

"Well, sir funny thing about these two young fellows. Both of 'em was president. One of 'em was William McKinley and the other was Warren. The colonel knew Warren G. Harding pretty well."

"Most honest man I ever saw," he comments. If I was going to write an epitaph for him I'd just say 'An Honest Man is the Noblest Work of God,' and let it go at that. He was honest all the way through."

"One time there was a company get into difficulty here and we tried to save it by underwriting it. Warren took $10,000 worth of shares of the stock. He himself because he wanted to help and in the belief that friends of his would take part of the stock. He didn't have $500 himself."

"He had to go to Columbus as state senator at that time. When he got back he found that some of the others who had taken stock had seen the men that he was going to see. Left him with $10,000 of the stock on his hands. Later the company went under. Warren worked and worked till he got all that paid off. Couldn't rest until he did."

But there's one little story the colonel told that made him stop for a moment, his throat filling up.

"Warren's father and mother had moved to Marion," he said. "Warren was left behind with orders to bring in a big white mule that Dr. Harding owned. Next day this big lumbering farmer boy astride the mule came riding to Marion."

"There was a man came into a little town of Jerusalem the same way. Warren was a good deal like that man in a lot of ways. Friday they're going to take the boy out over the same road that he first traveled when he came to this town."

The colonel stopped. There is a bit of silence.

FORMER PRESIDENT WILSON JOINS HARDING FUNERAL PROCESSION DESPITE ILL HEALTH

Washington, Aug. 8.—Woodrow Wilson, former president, a broken silent man, came out of his forced retirement today to join with the nation in paying a last tribute to Warren Gamaliel Harding.

He left the quiet solitude of his home in S Street to participate in the great state funeral ceremonies for the man who succeeded him in the highest office of the land.

Undeclared the advice of physicians who feared the trip would be too much for him, Mr. Wilson braved the heavy ordeal, because, as he said himself in a letter to President Coolidge, "I shall esteem it an honor to take part in the funeral procession." But he participated only to the extent of riding down Pennsylvania Avenue from the White House to the capitol behind the heavily draped, slow moving artillery caisson that carried the body of the late president.

His own precarious health, shattered in the service of country, prevented him from attending the impressive brief services under the historic dome of the capitol.

DONAHEY IN WASHINGTON.

Columbus, Aug. 8.—Governor Donahey is in Washington attending the funeral of President Harding. Before leaving for the national capital the governor issued a proclamation designating Friday, Aug. 10, as a day of general mourning in the state of Ohio.

POLITICIAN IS DEAD.

Celina, O., Aug. 8.—Byron Clendenning, former president of the Duckworth Democratic Club of Cincinnati and widely known politician, died of heart disease at his home here last night.

City Prepares for Sad Home-coming of Her Distinguished Son—Khaki-Clad Men On Duty to Handle Expected Immense Crowds

Marion, O., Aug. 8.—While Washington today paid homage to a dead president, Marion assumed a military aspect in preparation for a home-coming tomorrow—the saddest home-coming a city may know, when her distinguished dead son, Warren G. Harding, mourned by the nation honored by the world—but beloved by his fellow townsmen and neighbors here, will come to rest.

Khaki-clad men are on duty at all the main street intersections and all roads leading into the shrouded city. The fairgrounds is a beehive of activity, being placed in readiness for the arrival of 1,100 Ohio National guardsmen today, and an additional 2,000 Thursday, to handle the crowd of 100,000 visitors expected.

Soldiers pace their beats at the vine-covered, tree-surrounded vault in beautiful Marion cemetery, where the remains of a nation's dead leader will be placed Friday afternoon.

An officer and twenty or more enlisted men will do guard duty at the tomb for at least six months after the funeral, according to word received from the War Department by Colonel F. P. Lahn, in charge of arrangements for services at Marion.

The men will be detailed by Major General McRae, in command of the Fifth Army Corps area, with headquarters at Fort Hayes, Columbus.

Ample parking facilities have been provided at all entrances to the city for the benefit of thousands of strangers who will visit Marion Thursday and Friday.

Visitors are especially requested to leave their cars in the areas provided at the entrances to the city, and proceed therefrom on foot. Ample military guards will be available, and facilities provided for 50,000 automobiles, Major Roberts, in charge of parking arrangements, said.

Definite plans for the procession and services, announced by Col. F. P. Lahn, representing President Coolidge in Marion, were changed in several essentials.

The mortal remains of Warren G. Harding will arrive here about 10 o'clock Thursday morning. The body will be conveyed by hearse to the home of the president's aged father, where it will lie in state from 3 p. m. until 10 p. m. Thursday and from 9 until 11 p. m. Friday.

At 3 o'clock Friday the unostentatious funeral cortege will escort the remains to beautiful old Marion cemetery where services will be held upon arrival about 5 o'clock. It is expected that about 40 cars, bearing members of the family, high government officials and close personal friends of the dead president, will be admitted to the cemetery. The other tens of thousands will be on foot. The cemetery will be closed to all motor traffic Thursday and Friday.

Services at the cemetery will be held at the receiving vault and will be conducted by Rev. George Landis, the young pastor of Trinity Baptist church, Marion. He will be assisted by Rev. Jesse Swank, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of Marion, for years Mrs. Harding's minister and a close personal friend of the president. Mrs. Harding will return to Washington Friday evening after the services.

The honorary pallbearers include Speaker of the House Gillett, President Pro Tem of the Senate Cummins and the cabinet. The president will not be buried beside the simple graves of his mother and sister. The body will be kept in the receiving vault until a mausoleum has been built. This is in accordance with the request of Mrs. Harding.

President Coolidge and party are due to arrive in Marion at 8:30 Friday morning. It is expected they will make their headquarters on the train, and leave for Washington after the funeral.

Carpenters tore out the side steps leading to the front entrance of the Harding home and made a direct front entrance into the plain, old-fashioned front room, where the body will be viewed by thousands Thursday and Friday.

Approximately 1,100 Ohio national guardsmen detained at Marion today to be reinforced Thursday by an additional 2,000 troops to handle the expected crowd of 100,000 visitors. The troops are in command of Major General Benson W. Hough of Columbus.

The tomb will be guarded for six months by an officer and 25 enlisted men, Colonel Lahn, in charge of the arrangements, announced. The men will be detailed by Major General McRae, in command of the Fifth Army Corps area, with headquarters at Columbus.

ALLEGED MURDERER CAUGHT BY RUSE

Barre, Vt., Aug. 8.—George Pruneau, wounded World War veteran recently released from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., sought since the murder of 12-year-old Leone Tracy, was captured early today near Berlin through a ruse.

When Ted Crandall and Albert Currier heard Pruneau was in the neighborhood, they got out their automobile and started in the direction the hunted man was walking.

They offered a ride as far as Montpelier and Pruneau accepted. When a policeman was sighted, the car was brought to a halt and Pruneau was arrested. He still carried a revolver. Large posies have searched for the murderer of the little girl, who was shot through the heart when her mother objected to his attentions to the child.

SEEK NEW BASIS FOR REPARATIONS

London, Aug. 8.—Premier Stanley Baldwin consulted his cabinet today in an effort to establish a new basis of reparations negotiations with Belgium. It was reported from Brussels that Premier Theunis, of Belgium, is anxious to intervene to settle the differences between France and Great Britain.

With Italy lined up with England, the British may find means of bringing pressure upon France through Belgium. The latter have begun to feel the economic strain arising from uncertainty over reparations and are anxious to have the question definitely settled as soon as possible.

After an informal consultation between the premier and his ministerial colleagues a full meeting of the cabinet was held. Initial steps are under way to draft a reply to the latest French memorandum on reparations.

County Coroner R. L. Haines, of Paintersville, has ordered an inquest in the death of Kelly Watt, farmer of near Jamestown, who was killed in an automobile accident on the Jeffersonville pike Monday evening. The inquest will be held next Monday morning.

Watt was killed when the machine in which he was riding with Mrs. Watt and Mr. and Mrs. Ora Goodin and the latter's two children, collided head-in with an automobile going in the opposite direction occupied by four boys and driven by Leo Snodgrass.

It is claimed that both machines were being driven without lights, but that the lights on the machine occupied by Mr. Watt, had just gone out.

Mr. Goodin was warning other motor drivers by using a hand flash light.

Mrs. Watt received a fractured arm in the accident and was brought to the McClellan Hospital here Tuesday for an X-ray picture. The body of Mr. Watt was shipped from James town Wednesday morning to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Watt of Pike County, south of Waverly.

A FALSE PROPHET OF DIRE DISASTER.

Senator-elect Magnus Johnson is quoted as saying he "has no use for books."

This explains the recent revolutionary and altogether piratical interview he gave to the Associated Press. He predicts revolution—political, industrial and even a "resort to arms" if conditions confronting the laboring man and the farmer are not changed.

The senator adds: "Many think the same thing that happened in Russia cannot happen in this country; but don't fool yourself. The czar had a big army, but he could not stop a revolution. We haven't hardly any army at all, so what could our government do if there was a nation-wide revolution? It couldn't do a thing."

Obviously the new senator from Minnesota is helping the revolutionary sentiment by this very interview and statement. However, by his own admission, the senator knows nothing about books, and presumably nothing about history except the Russian revolution.

There have been predictions of revolution in the United States amounting to a resort to arms many times in the last fifty years. True, there have been uprisings and loss of life in clashes between different groups.

The aim of government for half a century or more has been to compel obedience to law and a maintenance of peace within our national borders. On the whole, this object has been attained with remarkable success, considering the great variety of natures, dispositions, ideas and habits among the 110,000,000 people. The melting-pot has boiled over many times, but is still in commission.

Many times in the nation's history there has arisen the spirit of disorder and discontent due to differences of opinion and group clashes. Once it amounted to a great civil war, when the nation's life was threatened. There have been political revolutions, as, for instance, when the Republican party stormed the citadel of slavery, established free labor and saved the republic. There have been industrial revolutions, as, for instance, when machinery revolutionized production and made one man do the work of five, and in less time; or when electricity revolutionized power and harnessed the waterfall, saving coal and human energy.

Has the Honorable Magnus Johnson ever read or thought of these great industrial revolutions?

Within the lifetime of this prophet of disaster, in his own state (Minnesota), in the last fifteen years the manufacturing establishments have nearly doubled, the value of manufactured products trebled, the wages and salaries of employes in these industries almost doubled. In 1919 this last item (salaries and wages) was more than $250,000,000! Was not this an industrial revolution?

Does the Honorable Magnus Johnson know that in his own state the value of all farm products increased from $414,000,000 in 1890 to $3,787,000,000 in 1920?

Was not this an industrial revolution, senator?

Is there anything in this industrial revolution to justify a "resort to arms?" Nothing but the vagaries in the imagination and threatening talk of the new senator from Minnesota.

MARION CEMETERY FITTING SHRINE FOR LAMENTED PRESIDENT.

The spot in Marion cemetery where all that is mortal of Warren G. Harding will be consigned to final rest, is one of the most beautiful in the vicinity of the quiet town to which he oftentimes said he hoped to return as an "ordinary citizen."

Situated at almost the exact center of the shady expanse of the old burial ground, the Harding family plot, where a president of the United States will resume his place among the kindly folk he knew and loved as neighbors, lies cupped in a tiny valley.

Two giant elms cast deep shadows over slabs of granite which mark the resting place of the president's mother and of his sister, Mary Clarissa, and only a few steps away a gleaming gravel roadway winds through a perfect archway of foliage fashioned by the inter-locking branches of virgin elms.

To the rear where the tiny depression levels itself out, stretches a quiet vista of gently rolling grass land, dotted here and there by the gray blot of a tombstone, all deepened into sombre tints by the shade of forest trees—a fitting background for the shrine of a dead president.

NEARLY A MILLION DOLLARS OF FEDERAL FUNDS TO BE SPENT ON OHIO HIGHWAYS.

Nearly one million dollars of federal funds will be spent on highway improvement in Ohio as a result of the approval by the federal highway department of the state's present federal-aid road-building program. Sixteen projects are involved. The total cost of the improvements will be $2,907,700, of which the federal government will pay $945,494.52. Approval of the Ohio projects came on the last day of the administration of Highway Director Leon C. Herrick.

By the close of the present summer approximately 179,000 miles of roads will have been designated as a part of the federal-aid road system by the highway authorities at Washington. The systems of 33 states, including Ohio, already have been approved, with a total of 105,406 miles. Of the 1,015 cities of 5,000 population or more in the states whose systems have been officially accepted, 959 lie directly on the road system and all, according to present plans, will soon be connected by improved state or county roads. When this system is completed it will be possible for one who lives in a city of 5,000 or more to travel to any other city of 5,000 or more on an improved road.

Again and again the question comes to me from readers: "How can I make money at home?" We all know the need of making money—or most of us do, anyway. The majority of women home-makers long to do something in the way of earning "pin money." There are so many, many ways they could use such money!

And I believe that there is some way for each and every one of us to make money at home. I have seen it done over and over again. Some housekeepers find that they can sell the things they cook. Another housewife keeps hens and sells the eggs. Still another raises Angora cats or canary birds or some other kind of pet. Taking boarders is another method.

But, to my mind, fancywork represents about the best way of making money. For this reason, I am continually publishing handwork suggestions in this column. I am constantly searching through city fancywork stores for "the latest wrinkle" in fancywork articles.

But when anybody says to me: "What would you do to earn pin money, if you didn't write for a living?" I always answer: "I think I could make bead chains. Of course I might not be able to make a living just by that alone, but I am sure that the chains I could make would sell. I could earn something at it."

For, this is the day of the bead chain. Do you know many women who don't wear bead chains? On the contrary, almost every woman owns several different chains. The average woman loves chains. And, furthermore, it is the fashion now to wear them.

Unusual chains should sell today. I believe that it would pay the woman who wishes to earn to invest one or two dollars in loose beads and then originate an artistic chain out of them; such a chain could be sold in a woman's exchange or in any small drygoods store—with a percentage

THERE is a reason for everything that happens. Common-sense kills misery. Common-sense also stops boils! S. S. S. is the common-sense remedy for boils, because it is built on reason. Scientific authorities admit its power! S. S. S. builds blood-power, it builds red blood-cells. That is what makes fighting-blood. Fighting-blood destroys impurities. It fights boils. It fights pimples! It fights skin eruptions! It always wins! Mr. V. D. Schaff, 557 15th street, Washington, D. C., writes:

"I tried for years to get relief from a bad case of boils. Everything failed until I took S. S. S. I am now absolutely cured, and it was S. S. S. that did it."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

AROUND THE WORLD.
I met a dusty traveler along the road one day.
And plainly he was homeward bound from half the world away.
And he had been to foreign ports on seas I'd never seen,
And heard the talk of men afar where I had never been.

"Oh, tired and dusty traveler," said I, "pray tell to me
What did you find in London town, so far across the sea?
What did you learn in Portugal, what did you see in Spain,
And do they sing and dance and laugh across the bounding main?"

"And do they have their little cares who live in ancient Rome?
And do the children romp and play the way they do at home?
Oh, tell me, dusty traveler, what have you found afar?

I'd like to know what pleases them and what their sorrows are."

"Oh, yes," he said, "they dance and sing wherever you may go.
And everywhere they think and talk just like the folks you know.
And whether skins be brown or white, the hearts of men are fair;
And though you tramp the world around, there's friendship every-where."

"They weep when sorrow comes to them, they smile when skies are blue,
In times of care good neighbors come to learn what they can do;
Though strange their speech and their ways, one common bond we know—
A kindly deed is understood no matter where you go."

Today's Talk

A SWISH OF DREAMS

We are led and inspired, even more than we ever attempt to believe, by that elusive something way back behind our curtain of dreams.

Every once in a while, there is a flash of it that touches our sight or our senses and immediately we are thrilled. Often this visitation comes wrapped in a cluster that buds right out of the darkness, like the stars from a sky rocket, only to melt into that same nest of blackness again and disappear.

But the impression remains. Sometimes I have a feeling that we must travel into a very beautiful country to come back in such happiness, as when we awake from a dream that makes a smile of our entire consciousness.

I had such a brief dream recently. It seems so real. And yet when I awakened, I could recall no incident, no logical sequence of events—for it was just a dream that streamed out as the sun streamed in!

I knew, however, that someone had talked to me. A pleasant, happy face was all that I could remember. The matter of sex didn't enter at all for I couldn't remember whether it was the face of a man or woman. It made me want to get right up, though, and go into the work of the day with heart and courage.

What would we do with these tired feet and wearied brains if at times we were not awakened by the swish of some beautiful dream passing before the front doors of our hearts? Perhaps, after all, our dreams are the diamond of our desires crystallizing for a moment—then flashing far ahead, beckoning us to follow. I wonder.

While minute guns of the army and navy boomed solemnly, the body of the late chief executive was taken from the white house to the capitol under the most representative escort that has ever paid tribute to a world leader.

General Pershing, as commander of the military escort, led the procession, which left the white house shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. Six generals of the army and six admirals of the navy acted as immediate guard of honor to the caisson bearing the remains of the late president. Seven senators, including President Pro Tem Cummings, and seven representatives, including Speaker Gillett of the house, joined members of the Harding cabinet in acting as honorary pallbearers. They moved with the caisson. Immediately in advance of the caisson was Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, marshal of the civic procession, the clergymen in charge of the services and the physicians who attended President Harding at his last illness.

Religious services began immediately after the body of the dead president had been placed in the rotunda beneath the central dome of the capitol. They were under the direction of the Rev. Freeman Anderson, acting pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, of which Mr. Harding was a member. The services were extremely simple. Draped flags and palms furnished dignified surroundings.

Following the religious services the doors were thrown open to the public to view the body as it lies in state.

At 6 o'clock this evening a military escort will take the body to the railroad station, while a farewell salute of 21 guns is fired at Fort Myer. The Harding special is expected to leave for Marion at 7 o'clock.

The following were included in the official section of the procession to the capitol: Circuit court of appeals, court of claims, court of customs appeals, court of appeals and supreme court of the District of Columbia, under secretaries and assistant secretaries of federal departments, assistant postmasters general and assistant attorneys general, United States marshal and United States attorney. The chairmen of the following groups also appeared: Federal reserve board, interstate commerce commission, civil service commission, various mixed commissions dealing with international problems and other agencies of the federal government.

The final and most representative group of the procession was that composed of persons from various patriotic and civic organizations. This section was headed by men who have won the congressional medal of honor for heroic deeds in the service of their country by land and sea. They were followed by army officers, headed by Assistant Secretary of War Davis and naval officers led by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt.

Next marched officers of the coast guard and public health service, headed by the assistant secretary of the treasury and officers of the coast and geodetic survey under the command of the assistant secretary of commerce.

CLAIM LIQUOR WAS FOUND.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—Deman G. Dawes, president of the Pure Oil company, is charged with illegal possession of intoxicating liquor. The charge was filed in Mayor White's court at Hebron, near here, following a raid on Dawes' summer home, near Newark, by seven dry agents, who said they found a quantity of liquor.

LAWSON AND ARCHER TO FURNISH MAIN GO

Fighting Bob Lawson of Pittsburgh, who holds the negro heavyweight championship of the south, makes his Ohio debut at Springfield Wednesday in a 12 round bout with Walter Archer of Akron.

The fight is being staged by Ray Bronson, matchmaker for the Springfield Business Men's Association. Lawson came out of the south on the trail of Tiger Flowers only to find that he would have to make a local reputation before being considered by Bronson.

The Pittsburgher is a big fellow, weighing 185 pounds. He cleaned up the south pretty well before leaving. He boasts of 19 knockouts in a row including the bout that brought him the southern title. He did not earn the title of "Fighting Bob" by knocking over setups because down in the part of the country a negro has to show something extraordinary.

Lawson fought Tiger Flowers at Nashville and although he lost, Lawson dropped Flowers six times during the fight. He is probably the hardest punching negro in the game today. Lawson has been promised a fight with Flowers in Springfield if he shows well with Archer and Lawson's followers predict he will stop Archer in three or four rounds.

There will be a 10 round semi-windup between Billy Thorpe of McCook field and Young Fisher of Springfield. These lads will fight at 135 pounds.

There will be a six round bout and a four round curtain raiser. Popular prices will prevail. The show will start at 8:15 o'clock at Memorial Hall.

RESERVES TO PLAY BOWERSVILLE NINE ON LOCAL DIAMOND

Bert Bowermeister, the Bowersville baseball magnate, will bring his fast-moving outfit of horsehide toasters into the corporate limits Sunday to engage in hostilities with the Xenia Reserves at Reserve Park.

The sporting dope gives promise that the coming set will be one of the best of the season. When Bowermeister reorganized his pastimers this season he uncovered a wonder boy in Wells, the crack mound artist, who has been getting away in grand shape for the Bowersville bunch.

Wells has pitched practically all of the games this season, and the hits garnered off his delivery have been few and far between. Murrell is holding up Wells in good style,

All of which does not interest the management of the Reserves because of the very strong belief that the locals are able to take care of themselves. McDonnell has quit the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Avenue combination but Cyphers or McMichaels of Dayton are still on the payroll of the Reserves, and one of these tossers will be used Sunday. The Reserves have also been strengthened in other departments, insuring a high class attraction.

TO START ERECTION OF NEW BUILDING AT O. S. & S. O. HOME

Erection of the new school building and combined laundry and dry cleaning establishment at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home here will start within 30 days, it is announced.

Plans for the two buildings were approved by the board of trustees at the last meeting after being presented by State Architect Robert Harsh. The building program was approved by the State Legislature some time ago and the funds appropriated. The school will cost about $150,000 and the laundry approximately $27,000.

The school house will be built on a site between the present north school building and the chapel, and will contain an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,200 and a swimming pool. It will be established as a first-grade high school and will relieve congested conditions in the other two schools, it is said. The first four-year high school course at the institution was started last year.

The old grade building has been condemned as unfit for use, and the high school and sewing and stenography classes are housed in a building erected adjoining the old school. The old building will be repaired and equipped for a vocational school and the grades will be placed in the present high school.

The use of the new blue and gray uniforms make a dry cleaning plant necessary, it is said, and the establishment of such a plant in conjunction with the new laundry, will be an innovation. The new uniforms, now used only on dress occasions, will replace the present "washable" uniforms entirely soon. The laundry building and equipment is out of date, it is said.

FORMER XENIAN OBSERVES BIRTH ANNIVERSARY IN WEST

A recent issue of the Stroud (Oklahoma) Democrat, contains an account of the celebration of the eighty-second birth anniversary of Dr. Harrison A. Galloway, of Stroud, a former Xenian.

About 30 guests were received on the lawn and there was entertainment provided from contests to fortune telling. Dr. Galloway received many gifts, including a rocking chair from his family and refreshments were served. Barrett Galloway read an article and there were talks by the different guests.

Dr. Galloway left Xenia 48 years ago and has been in the Indian Territory, now the state of Oklahoma, for 40 years. He was a member of Company D, 74th, Ohio Volunteer Infantry and retains membership in the G. A. R. He now is chief of staff, department commander and delegate to the national encampment at Milwaukee.

"I have seen this country grow from Texas Long Horns into now a state of over 2,000,000 people, when in 1832, when I came the population of the territories was less than 200,000," said Dr. Galloway in a letter to this paper.

FARM NEWS OF GREENE COUNTY

WHEAT YIELD IN GREENE COUNTY OF HIGH QUALITY AND QUANTITY RESULTS SHOW

Greene County farmers are highly pleased with the wheat yield, this year, the crop being of both high quality and quantity. The yield passed the legal standard weight of 60 pounds, the yield in one field, registering 62 pounds to the bushel, an unusual amount. Good high weights have been recorded on all farms.

More favorable conditions were shown at filling time, than during the past few years, giving the entire county a good wheat yield, according to farmers.

The superiority which northern Ohio wheat showed last year over wheat grown in southern Ohio counties is not apparent this year, according to crops specialists at the Ohio State University. Inspecting samples of threshed grain submitted by farmers from all parts of the state for certification as seed.

Ohio wheat in general is of better weight and quality than in the years immediately preceding, they add. Few specimens of threshed grain are being turned down because of low weight to the bushel. The main causes for rejection are cockle and cheat in the grain.

Some samples, from both northern and southern counties, are running 61 pounds to the bushel this year, and few are falling below 59 pounds to the bushel. The legal weight of a bushel of wheat in Ohio is 60 pounds. Last year, a good deal of southern Ohio's crop ran around 56 pounds to the bushel.

This was thought to be due mainly to wheat scab. There was little scab in any part of the state this year, and an apparent discrepancy between the quality of northern and southern grown wheat.

Of the first 50 samples of threshed grain submitted for inspection of seed, two-thirds passed, it is announced. Samples from about 300 farms where wheat passed field inspection are to be this examined, and it is estimated that about 290 farms will have certified wheat for sale at the end of the inspection process. Crops men at the college think this will be enough certified seed wheat to supply the state's needs.

THE MISFIT

By Jane Phelps

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters

Natalie Horton, a business girl, marries Horace Crandell, a wealthy, aristocratic bachelor who has promised never to leave his mother. The latter terms her daughter-in-law a "misfit." Unpleasantnesses occur that eventually cause Natalie to leave Horace. Horace and his mother go to Europe but the son grieves for his wife and returns to her. Meanwhile Craig Harper falls in love with Natalie and tries to win her from Horace.

Eventually Natalie writes Mrs. Crandell asking her to return to take her life up again as mistress of her old home. Horace's mother takes time to think over the proposal. Natalie and Horace summer in Maine. Harper follows and again tests Natalie, only to be repulsed. Beverly Rainford visits them and is skeptical as to Mrs. Crandell's return.

HAPPY DAYS

Chapter LXVII

Beverly's departure brought Etta, Clyde and the baby, Natalie. The week of their visit was a busy and happy one for all. The little girl now toddling about and beginning to talk, was a great favorite with Horace. Natalie often declared she was jealous when she saw how she clung to him, and how pleased he was to gratify her baby whims. Horace was very gentle with her, yet she obeyed him far more quickly than either her father or mother. Often he would look at her with an expression in his eyes that Natalie interpreted as a longing for a child of his own.

Etta and Clyde enjoyed the unusual pleasures provided for them gratefully, both declaring they never had so good a time in all their lives. They did not realize that Horace, as well as Natalie made all their days special days, feeling they owed their present happiness to them, and wishing to repay them as far as they could.

Horace particularly felt that he could not do enough for the kindly pair who had sheltered Natalie when she was deserted and ill. So he filled every hour for them with some pleasure, some entertainment.

Then they, too, left and Horace and Natalie were once more alone. In a short three weeks they would return to the city and yet they had received no hint of Mrs. Crandell's plans. She had written several times but made no mention of her intentions.

How could her son and his wife suspect the weariness, the lassitude, that lay at the heart of her being? How could they know that she was too old for the new ties she had made to gain much of a hold upon her, that her only sensation was one of depression? How could they know her fears, mostly fears of her own ability to fit in their new manner of being.

How could they know that often she forgot to eat at appropriate hours because of thinking of them, trying to decide what was best to do for Horace's happiness? Natalie, Mrs. Crandell eliminated entirely, save as she affected Horace, her boy. So they waited, Natalie only a little less impatient for the mother's decision.

"She will surely write before we return to town," he said in one of their frequent talks of his mother. "I should think so, we asked her to you know" was Natalie's reply.

Those last days were days of unalloyed happiness to Natalie. She had a feeling that they were the last really happy days she would ever know. She pictured herself alone in her luxurious room in the old house, or sitting apart while Horace and his mother played chess in the library. She visioned herself as once more a nonentity in the home, sneered at by the servants because of her meek acceptance of the role assigned to her. She thought with a shudder of the conversation at table in which she had no part, was ignored. Yet not one word of all this did she say to Horace, hanging on to her happiness with a fierceness that at times dismayed her. She never had been so gay, so perfect a companion to Horace, never so fascinating, so lovely. Unconsciously he responded to her mood and as the days flew by he became more in love with her than ever, more anxious to be beside her.

They were all packed up, ready to return to the city. In two days they would be gone. They were sitting at the breakfast table, lingering over their coffee, talking of their plans of the day, which was to be a full one. They would visit all the places grown dear to them, say "goodbye" as Natalie put it, to all their favorite haunts. Then the last day they would spend in their sailboat, taking the night train for home.

The maid brought in the morning mail. Horace sorted it, giving Natalie her letters, at which she scarcely glanced. She had seen the foreign postmark on an envelope at the bottom of the pile. Mrs. Crandell had written at last.

Natalie trembled as Horace picked it up. It was the end, unless—

"A letter from mother. I expect she has decided what she will do about coming to us," Horace remarked, as in his usual deliberate fashion he opened it.

Tomorrow—Mrs. Crandell Writes Horace

JUST GOT OVER A COLD?

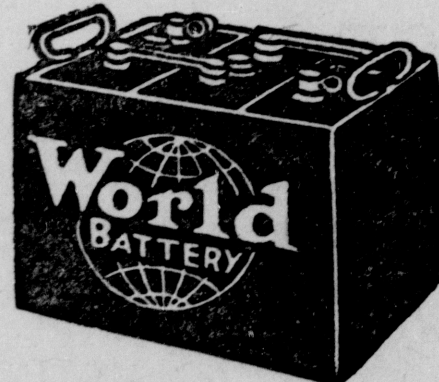

Look out for kidney trouble and backache. Colds overtax the kidneys and often leave them weak. For weak kidneys—well, read what an Xenia woman says:

Mrs. Hannah A. Reed, 520 W. Second St., says: "There were times when I stooped while washing that I got severe stabs of pain through my back, and I could hardly rise again, my back was so stiff. When I got up mornings I was lame and tired. My back throbbed in the morning just as if I had been pounded with a club. My kidneys were irregular in action and caused me annoyance. Colds settled on my kidneys and this started my trouble. About three boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, which were highly recommended to me, relieved me of those pains in my back. My kidneys became normal and regular in every way."

A Farmer's View of the Railroads

"I THINK that the farming business and the railroad business are so utterly dependent upon each other, their interests are so identical that the man who drives a wedge between them is either crazy or he is a crook.

"What I want most of all is service and I don't see how any railroad can give it unless it has a good safe track and sufficient cars and the ample power to pull them, and that means ENOUGH MONEY to buy them.

"The question before us is not 'shall we save a few dollars on freight?' but 'shall the railroad business remain a business or shall it be a government agency owned in common but run by political employees?' If it is to remain a business it will have to be run as a business and run to pay at least six per cent. for its owners. If it is to be communized, that is owned in common, I am just warning you that the communists will not wish to stop there. They will some day covet your farms.

"They can't have mine!"

F. L. Chapman, Editor, "Better Farming".

Agriculture, transportation and industry are three mighty elements in America's greatness. Their interests are one and inseparable—now and always. Neither can prosper, in any substantial and lasting way, save as the others prosper in equal degree.

To Recall the Operator

WHEN you lift the telephone receiver, a small electric light glows on the switchboard in front of the operator.

While the hook is up the light burns, press it down and the light goes out.

When you "jiggle" the receiver hook rapidly the tiny electric globe barely flickers or does not light at all.

But when you move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y, the signal lamp glows and goes out at regular intervals and thus attracts the operator's attention. Your line is only one of several she is handling and watchful as her eyes are, she cannot serve you properly unless you allow the signal lamp to function correctly.

The next time you wish to recall the operator, remember that she cannot see a glow from an unlighted lamp. Move the hook up and down s-l-o-w-l-y.

Visit a central office and see the signal lamp and other apparatus in operation. Arrangements for a trip may be made at the business office.
